General Comment

I do not feel it is necessary for the Department to limit my right to trade options in my retirement account. I have studied the stock market for over thirty years. I have been an investor since the early 1980's. I do my own research and read books on the topic of options trading. I also have a Master's Degree in Business Administration.

I use an on-line brokerage firm to make my trades. They are my own decisions. I am not influenced by aggressive broker representatives looking for increased trades or commissions.

I am opposed to limiting or eliminating the ability to trade options in IRA accounts.
